Facts About The Los Angeles Greek Film Festival

Posted on May 5, 2012 by admin

Although the Los Angeles Greek Film Festival is held in the states, the event features Greek filmmakers from around the world. The basis of the film festival is to intertwine Greek Cinema “ and Greek culture “ with Hollywood. This film festival has been going on for six years, and continues to grow bigger each year, with filmmakers gaining exposure in the top global film circles around the world. The festival awards filmmakers in various categories, such as short films, dramas and documentary style films. Confused? here

The Los Angeles Greek Film Festival is being held the last weekend of May, through the first week of June. Filmmakers who meet eligibility requirements can enter their films the first week of March for consideration that year’s festival. Eligibility requirements include films about Greece, films made by Greek filmmakers, or films by US and local residents with a prevalent Greek theme. Films that are written, produced, directed, co-directed, co-written, co-produced or star lead actors of Greek decent are also considered, if the film or individual is credited. The film festival applications must include the appropriate entry fee, which varies depending on the length of the feature. Students entering films receive a discount that is cheaper than a non-student participant.
